The Iroquois Indian Museum –a place of inspiration, cultural exchange and lifetime learning

Established in 1980, the Museum offers a window into the dynamic complexity of Iroquois culture and history through visual and performing arts. Exhibitions, art demonstrations, dance and storytelling presentations, Festivals, and education programs celebrate both tradition and innovation. In addition to the largest collection of contemporary Iroquois art worldwide, the Museum maintains historical materials and archaeological objects with an emphasis on the Schoharie Valley. A family-focused learning area with live turtle pond, interactive exhibits and activities occupies the Museum’s lower level. An outdoor covered amphitheater accommodates performing arts presentations. A 45-acre nature park features walking trails with interpretive signage.
